

microsoft.public.windows.group_policy: Re: local security group into local Administrator group

Re: local security group into local Administrator group

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.group_policy/2004-07/0041.html

From: Roger Abell (mvpNOSpam_at_asu.edu)

Date: 07/03/04

Date: Sat, 3 Jul 2004 00:20:29 -0700

Evidently some code has a bug as it is not permitted for machine local groups to nest within other machine local groups.

--

Roger Abell

Microsoft MVP (Windows Server System: Security)

MCSE (W2k3,W2k,Nt4) MCDBA

"Jeff Hicks" <jeffrey_hicks@lycos.com> wrote in message news:80dc4163.0407021420.d01daaa@posting.google.com...

> Would like to use Restricted Groups to standardize the local > Administrator group as much as possible. However, on SOME PCs I have > to have non-standard domain users with Administrative privileges.
>
> I THOUGHT I could get around the "wipe and replace" behavior of > Restricted Groups by having it add a local security group to the local > Administrators group (add the local group but not specify the > members). It LOOKS like it is working. The local group is in the list > of Administrators in the GUI and in "net localgroup Administrators" > however the domain users contained in the local group cannot perform > administrative functions.
>
> What am I missing?
> Is there a better way to get some flexibility of Administrators on a > case by case basis?