

RE: policy to restrict how to close a dos session

---

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.group\_policy/2005-04/msg00144.html

---

- From: "Mike" <mnqrs@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Thu, 7 Apr 2005 05:49:06 -0700
-

Jason,

Thank you for the reply. However, while I understand the concept of break/fix, I don't understand what made my question markedly different from most of the questions regarding group policy in this group. Most are looking for a policy that will perform a certain task or tasks, and they are given valid answers. How is my question different?

Perhaps there is not a group policy that allows me to do what I am looking for. Then, the appropriate answer would have been that you do not know the answer, not necessarily to steer me to support which charges $110.00/hour.

Please tell me if I'm off base here.

Mike

"Jason Tan[MSFT]" wrote:

- > Hi Mike,
- >
- > Thanks for posting!
- >
- > Please note that the newsgroups provide assistance to resolve break/fix
- > issues. We recommend Microsoft Advisory Services, a remotely-delivered,
- > consultative support option that adds the element of proactive support,
- > providing a comprehensive result beyond your break-fix product maintenance
- > needs. More information on this service here:
- > <<http://support.microsoft.com/gp/advisoryservice>>
- >
- > For more info in the US and Canada:
- > <http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?pr=AdvisoryService>
- >
- > Outside of the US/Canada:
- > <http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=%2finternational.aspx>
- >
- > Thanks & Regards,
- >
- > Jason Tan
- >

