Is it possible to use GP and block access to the LAN properties / tcp/ip settings?

I have a couple of users who like to change their gateway so they can route themselves out a different WAN. If I can block access to the LAN properties on local machines, we aren't in a domain and I don't have a Server with AD, so it's a per machine basis.

Note: Try to login each and every machine as a administrator set the security policy user can not change any settings .
