

security setting problem

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.browser/2004-02/10031.htm>

From: Jimmy B (anonymous_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 02/26/04

Date: Wed, 25 Feb 2004 20:13:13 -0800

Are you on a LAN or at home?

Jim

>-----Original Message-----

>Whenever I attempt to download quicktime player, I receive a message stating that: "Your current security settings prohibit activeX controls on this page. As a result, the page will not display properly." I cannot get the download to start. The next page bluntly says: "Your current security settings do not allow this file to be downloaded."

>

>I checked my settings and set the activeX ones to "enable", set the security to low, restarted my machine, and a few other long shots all to no avail.

>

>The support site is absolutely useless and doesn't even have an email page to ask the tech a question. Talk about horrible customer service.

>

>The spec of my machine is well above the minimum requirements for the program too (3.2 P4, 1024 RAM, ATI 9800 AIW GC, etc...). My OS is Win XP Pro.

>

>Does anyone have any tips or ideas what could be the barrier and how to amend the issue?

>

>Thanks,

>Gary

>

>.

>