

web page malfunction

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.browser/2004-04/2925.htm>

From: mike (anonymous_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 04/08/04

Date: Thu, 8 Apr 2004 13:55:37 -0700

I have 3 computers on a local LAN. 2 of the computers run win98 and the 3rd which is a brand new emachine has winXP. The XP machine has something funny with it when I view web pages. For the most part its OK. However, for example if I go to the ebay site – the home page looks fine but when I click on the "search" tab the next screen looks funny like things are spread out and also I see formatting text which normally should be invisible. Also the entire page is shifted way to the right side of the screen where I have to scroll over to it to read it. In fact, I couldn't even write this note on the XP machine since when I clicked "new post" nothing happens. Therefore, I had to write this message from the win98 machine.
Any ideas??