

Re: homepage hijacking

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.browser/2004-05/2838.htm>

From: Niteowl (Niteowl.15ypfv_at_mail.mcse.ms)

Date: 05/08/04

Date: Sat, 8 May 2004 17:09:32 -0500

Niteowl wrote:

- > I do have the same problem. It seems that there is a new hijacker*
- > in the cyberspace. I've tried to get around the problem to no avail.
- > Even the latest version of AdAware doesn't seem to recognize that
- > spyware/malware. I've uninstalled IE 6.0, reinstalled it, setting my
- > home page to blank, this same navigation toolbar keeps popping up,
- > offering some of their links.
- >
- > Here is the copy of what I can't get rid of (DO NOT CLICK ON IT!):
- > [http://tinyurl.com/3bkrq\[url\]](http://tinyurl.com/3bkrq?url)
- >
- > So, I guess "Netseachsoft.com" is the baddie and I can't seem to be
- > able to get rid of their .DLL
- >
- > Any help would be greatly appreciated.
- >
- > *Thanks. **

I've found the solution. Only took 2 minutes to fix the "NetSearchSoft" hijack. The www.computercops.biz forums have helped, and you can download the software called "HiJackThis". I had to run the scan three times to get rid of NetSearchSoft completely, but it worked great. No more annoying blue bars and no other search engine is popping up. Great software.

--

Niteowl

Posted via <http://www.mcse.ms>

View this thread: <http://www.mcse.ms/message652178.html>