

Re: Internet Explorer has been hijacked by "About:Blank"

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.browser/2004-08/5436.htm>

From: Bill V (mothergoose_enb_at_yahoo.com)

Date: 08/26/04

Date: Thu, 26 Aug 2004 00:44:08 GMT

Have you tried running;
hijackthis.exe
then using the information to troubleshoot with.
Bill

"george@barringtonsoftware.com"

<george@barringtonsoftware.com@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message
news:1B4AA89E-B73A-45BB-902F-894112DCA6EA@microsoft.com...

> Hello John, anyone else,

>

> *I have had a full blown case of about:blank. I read someplace else that
the*

> programmer who wrote it should have his (sorry about gender discrimination > here, but no woman would do such a thing) privates encased in a vice whilst

> it is being closed. I'll second that.

>

> Two things just to get it to stop. Keep your modem off when you startup > your computer. Kill Iexplore.exe sessions that come up in the process list

> of Task Manager (Windows NT, 2K, XP). This is what is resetting your home > page. Either keep the modem off or wait a minute or two. It gives up after

> a retry or two.

>

> Next your browser -> Tools ->Internet Options -> Security. Click Custom > Level. Disable Java and disable download. You can disable the Activex as > well. Reset them to enabled after you think you are not going to be > reinfected every time your computer starts up.

>

> Until I followed these steps, the whole thing would come back every time I > re-started my computer.

>

> To get rid of it I ran CWshredder.exe, which seemed to get rid of it, but as

- > I mentioned, it kept coming back. I also downloaded NoAdware, which actually
- > identified files that should be removed and was able to remove them pretty
- > well. It also keeps identifying svchost.exe in my Windows System32
- > directory
- > as being infected with a dll which it is claiming is causing my problems.
- It
- > is not able to remove this file, which is a good thing because it is vital
- to
- > communications. I replaced it with an identical file from Windows XP
- Service
- > Pack 1a on another computer and it diagnosed the new one the same way. So
- > I'm not sure. I don't know any of the other adware programs so can't
- comment
- > on whether they are better or NoAdware is better or whether any of them
- > really completeley work.
- >
- > At any rate, now I can work on the computer O.K., I am able to set my
- > homepage O.K., but my computer continues to crank up a session of
- > Iexplore.exe every time at startup as well as occaisional extra IE sessions
- > that begin at about:blank and morph into advertisements, many of them from
- a
- > bannerfarm site. This is manageable, but I sure would like to get rid of
- the
- > IE startup at computer startup and the extra sessions.
- >
- > I also have an empty value in the place described where the reglite
- program
- > is used.
- >
- > I have Norton 2003. I think Norton 2004 or greater is required to manage
- > adware. They do document it and claim that it is easy to get rid of, but
- I
- > followed their procedure and I still have the symptoms described.
- Perhaps,
- > because I have Norton 2003. They identified this as "Istbar" adware.
- >
- > I should also mention that when I uninstalled or got rid of "Istbar", the
- > uninstallation took me to a web page that said something like they were
- sorry
- > to see the uninstallation and hoped it had been useful and also advertised
- > anti-adware software. "Istbar" is anything but useful. I would call it
- more
- > like a plague.
- >
- > Any information anyone has would be welcomed.
- >
- > George Kotcher
- > Barrington Software Incorporated
- >
- > "john chapman" wrote:

microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.browser: Re: Internet Explorer has been hijacked by "About:Blank"

>

> > I have used reglite and it shows nothing in the Value field.

> > Presumably, the "hidden" file has been removed. Nevertheless, > > about:blank still comes up when I say Use Blank for my homepage. I > > get few if any popups, but my Norton Professional Security is set to > > block all popups. Can I presume that the non hidden file still exists > > on my machine. I have not been able to identify that file. Any > > suggestions???

> >