

Re: Security in different XP versions – breaking news

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.browser/2004-09/5769.htm>

From: Fr. Gregory Hallam (orthnospam_at_clara.net)

Date: 09/24/04

Date: Fri, 24 Sep 2004 22:13:42 +0100

> Pretty well all the tasks listed there I would consider routine > maintenance and should be done on a regular basis in any case.
>

Dear Fuzzy Logic

... but you are an IT professional (I assume from your posts) and I have a certain degree of intermediate knowledge self taught over 15 years.

My friends who do not have these skills want a PC to do what it says on the box. Maintenance (except for major incidents) should be easier to handle and less time consuming ... BIOS, uninstall this, that and the other, run anti-spyware, disable this, that and the other, update drivers etc. etc. totally unrealistic for most of the market.

--

Yours
Greg Hallam