

Active X Control Message

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.browser/2005-02/1466.htm>

From: Sandra53 (Sandra53_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 02/05/05

Date: Sat, 5 Feb 2005 15:15:05 -0800

When browsing any website the message keeps appearing that the security settings are not allowing the page to be displayed properly. The web page is displaying properly and I can't get rid of the message window.

XP Home Edition

Security is set at custom, medium with all active X areas at enabled. Even if I change the setting to medium-low it will default back to medium. Is there a resolution?

Thank you for your assistance