I just got a new laptop, IBM Thinkpad T42, running XP pro. For the past two days (I've had the laptop about a week), each time I boot up, IE's forgotten my homepage and defaults to MSN.com. I don't think I've been hijacked, since the browser will remember my preferences until I power down the laptop. I've run Spybot and Ad-aware; none of the usual suspects (like Xupiter) are found. This doesn't appear to be the same issue that was listed in the other thread ("MSN hijacks homepage") since I didn't set my preference to about:blank in the first place.

Please help!
