

Re: ActiveX problems

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.browser/2005-05/msg0001>

- From: Steve Lowe <splowe@xxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 01 May 2005 07:54:32 +0100
-

Hi,

I know the pages do work ok – my PC at the office runs XP Pro – updated with SP2 back end of last year – only difference I can think of is the PC in the office has MS Java VM – my PC at home is using Sun Java – should this matter –?

Regards

splowe.

On Sat, 30 Apr 2005 22:36:54 –0500 "Charlie Tame" <charlie@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

>Well I got IE to quit displaying the refusal notice but despite that it >still won't work, and I tried putting the main site and others linked in the >page into the trusted zone and still no go, and I turned off checking for >sigs and certs and all manner of things and still no go, with either site.
>It "Says" it's downloading but who knows :)
>
>Curious.
>
>Like you I think I have tried everything so I go try on a brand new XP >install with no updates yet...
>
>Hmm, no go on there either and at this time I don;t have a machine with 2K >accessible. Mind you, if you think the settings in XP pro are tight you >should see the defaults in W2003 :)
>
>I looked at some traffic cams in associated websites and they worked so >maybe we have some error on the actual pages?
>
>Charlie
>
>"Steve Lowe" <splowe@xxxxxxx> wrote in message
>news:ddo6715d7eddc49mevhp0uf2378p5v3h25@xxxxxxxxxxx
>> Hi – Thanks for the suggestion – tried that – tried most other

Re: ActiveX problems

>> suggestions from similar problems in this newsgroup – have run MS >> Malacious software scan, Spybot Search and Destroy – it seems as it >> the activex control simple is not being installed – other activex >> sites work ok – can you suggest a site with a safe but >> unknown/uncertified activex control to test with.
>>
>> Have also tried disabling zone alarm pro & norton AV but still get >> same problem
>>
>> Regards
>>
>> Steve.
>>
>>
>> On Fri, 29 Apr 2005 18:04:05 –0400 "Jon Kennedy"
>> <jkennedy2@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:
>>
>>>Try this setting change – just for this one site, if you trust it – in IE >>>go >>>to Tools...Internet Options...Advanced tab, scroll down to the Security >>>section and check the box by "Allow software to run or install even if the >>>signature is invalid" (which seems to apply to that site's ActiveX >>>control), >>>click Apply, click Okay. Don't forget to uncheck that box later. If no >>>joy, go to the Security tab, Custom button and check your ActiveX settings >>>there.
>>
>> – Steve Lowe
>> – E-Mail : NO.SPAM.splove@xxxxxxx
>> – Before Replying Remove .NO.SPAM
>> – UK Resident although my e-mail address is usa.net
>

– Steve Lowe
– E-Mail : NO.SPAM.splove@xxxxxxx
– Before Replying Remove .NO.SPAM
– UK Resident although my e-mail address is usa.net
.

• Follow-Ups:

◆ Re: ActiveX problems
◇ From: Charlie Tame

• References:

◆ Re: ActiveX problems
◇ From: Charlie Tame

• Prev by Date: View->Text Size -> Largest
• Next by Date: Yahoo News Errors on Page...

Re: ActiveX problems

- Previous by thread: Re: ActiveX problems
- Next by thread: Re: ActiveX problems
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread