

Re: All of a sudden, IE6.1 starts automatically upon user logon

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.browser/2005-05/msg0292>

- From: "David F" <David-White@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Tue, 31 May 2005 08:52:12 -0700
-

Thanks.

Nevertheless, I think that Windows' startup should not be a secret and as user I should EASILY be able to control what does or does not start automatically on logon w/o any extra software.

I also try to avoid cramming my computer with stuff that I should normally be able to manage without it.

David

"Loonier" <Loonier@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:8A9D20FB-C77A-4BC8-B8CD-0905618E2624@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx
> I suggest you install something like Mike Lin's Startup Control Panel, which > accesses all the places where startups can be initiated, and allows you to > toggle each entry on/off. You can get SCP from:
> <http://www.mlin.net/StartupCPL.shtml>

• References:

- ◆ All of a sudden, IE6.1 starts automatically upon user logon
 ◇ From: David F
- ◆ RE: All of a sudden, IE6.1 starts automatically upon user logon
 ◇ From: Loonier

- Prev by Date: Can't access Windows Updates
- Next by Date: ieexplore.exe application error
- Previous by thread: RE: All of a sudden, IE6.1 starts automatically upon user logon
- Next by thread: All Fonts Italics
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread