I (stupid as I am) just installed IE 7 Beta 1 on my system.
I thought the uninstall or system restore would help me out in case of emergency.

During install the setup raised an error about no rights (I'm using my own account which is an local administrator and a domain administrator)
The only option I had was OK, so I continued and installation stopped.

If I now try to run IE then I get the message "The procedure entry point InternetGetSecurityInfoByUrlW" could not be located in the dynamic library WININET.dll"

So I tried to uninstall IE 7. The uninstall says: "Internet Explorer cannot be uninstalled from this user account. Please log on to the same use account from which it was installed and try again." I never used another account than my own, so this is a problem. I tried uninstalling from the local administrator account, same message!

A new install doesn't work, it says that I have to use the control panel.

I tried a System restore. It says, that it is possible, but after running IE 7 is still on the system.

So even if I want to use IE ... I have to use Firefox from now on.

If anybody has a clue.....
