I will do this on my test machine (since this is happening on 2-different harddrives, w2k and XP). I will let you know, but it will take a day or two before I get back to this.

The weird thing is that the same software is on my home computer (W2K-Pro) and it works fine. I think it has ALSO something to do with what order certain software is put on the computer and what patches are already on IE6.

Let you know soon.

Hi JCO,

Based on my experience, I would like to suggest you remove

Adobe 7 Professional (with 7.05 upgrade) Roxio 8.0 (with 8.5 upgrade added)
NortonSystemWorks 2005 Pro

temporarily. Expecially Adobe&Norton. I have seen lot of problems were caused by Adobe&Norton without any clues.

What's really wierd is that I'm trying to reinstall all my "developmental"

software on another drive. If all works, I will just start using xp-pro.

However; during the installation of a certain software, the same problem

is

now happening with WindowsXP-Pro as it did on my W2K-Pro. Both of these are on different harddrives.

I don't know if it has anything to do with the but seems like it could be

one of the followings:
Adobe 7 Professional (with 7.05 upgrade)
Roxio 8.0 (with 8.5 upgrade added)
NortonSystemWorks 2005 Pro
Microsoft Office 2003

It had to happen during the install of one of these software packages.

Hope

Hi JCO,

Thanks for sending me the report. I'll take time to research.

Meanwhile, please help me confirm following informatin:

1. Have you tried other third-party Internet Browser?
2. Have you tried the tool in below link?

<http://windowsxp.mvps.org/IEFIX.htm>

3. I checked Robert's link: It is a more detailed IE related DLL files re-register. You can try it first.

4. Please check system protected file:

Run
sfc/purgecache
sfc/scannow

in command prompt.

Let me know the results. Thanks.

Hi
JCO,

Let's
try
to re-install IE6(If possible)

Method
1:

if you don't have IE6

Re: IE6 Won't let me See Graphics listed in Add-Remove

Programs,
then
in

Start|Run

then

enter
"rundll32
setupwbv.dll,IE6Maintenance" without the quotes,

exactly

as shown (it's case sensitive),

and select
the appropriate entry.

More detailed info
is available
here:
Description
of
the

Internet

Explorer

Repair
Tool
<http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=kb;en-us;310592> (Also

apply
to IE6)

Method
2:

1)
Insert
the Windows
installation CD
in your CD-ROM
drive.

2) Click
Start,
click
Run.

3)
Copy
the command prompt
below
in
the Open
box (exactly

show –

it's

case
sensitive),
click OK.
(Assumes %System% is

installed

in

Windows

on your
C:\
partition.
Change
appropriate
for

particular situation.)

Rundll32.exe
setupapi,InstallHinfSection

DefaultInstall

132 c:\windows\inf\ie.inf

4)
It
will display a
"File Needed"
screen,
click
"Browse.."
and

browse

to

<CD-ROM
drive>\i386, (where <CD-ROM drive>
the

drive
letter

the

CD-ROM,
For
example,
D:).

5) Click
Open,
click
Ok,
it should begin reinstalling Internet

Explorer.

(NOTE: It
has been reported,
courtesy
of Steve Wechsler,
that if you're

on

Windows
XP
Pro
SP2,
it
may prompt
you

some files
that it

cannot find

the WINDOWS\ServicePackFiles\i386
folder,
which you'll then

need

to

browse
to.
It's
thought
that this may apply
to XP
Home
also.

The

specific

files
are iexplore.exe
actually
in
the i386

folder,

Re: IE6 Won't let me See Graphics

mswrd632.wpc,
which
is located
in
the Program
Files\Common
Files\Microsoft
Shared\TextConv
folder,
AND,
INSTALL.IN_

will

located
on
slipstreamed XP
Pro
in
the i386
folder
and also

the i386
folder
on an XP
Pro
disk.
So,
copying
the files

above

the WINDOWS\ServicePackFiles\i386
folder
should allow you
to

be able

to repair/reinstall IE

on an SP2
system
by right clicking
ie.inf

in

the WINDOWS\inf
folder
and selecting Install
or using
the

line

given
above.)
