

Re: LOTS of Pop Up's

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.browser/2006-07/msg0027>

---

- From: Paul <Paul@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Sat, 8 Jul 2006 05:17:01 -0700
-

Tom this crap just started a couple of weeks ago. And just gets worse. I have found that the geeks are wrong more than they are right. But a broken clock is right twice a day so I gave them a shot. I smell a format coming. Nothing is better than the smell of format in the morning.

"Tom Willett" wrote:

I have zero pop-ups, so the Geek Squad must be wrong.

Tom

"Paul" <Paul@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message <news:04412816-1224-44C8-9DDF-418D137D1AB4@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

I have windows defender. and I am getting pop-ups right now and this microsoft page is the only site that I have opened. I am fighting to close them. I have two monitors and in monitor 2 I have no less than 30 open windows. Thanks for the inputs but ..... Could it be partly because I am on a wireless network (yes it is secured). I talked to the "Geek Squad" at Best Buy and they said that I just have to accept that it is part of the internet and how it works.

"nass" wrote:

Beside the good advice and Tips by Jon, it depends on the kind of sites you visit if you visiting a website built with a lot of Pop-Ups triggered by (Java applet) or clicking on any link on their page, then it will do it Automatically unless you close it from the *X* or by

Re: LOTS of Pop Up's

pressing ALT + DEL +CTRL, this the kind of aggressive marketing tools which adopted by some websites to push you buy their stuff.
If you have Windows Firewall it will not be enough to protect you from the
WWW, try a third party Firewall.
HTH
Regards
nass
P.S BTW what time the packaging was LOL. :o)

"Paul" wrote:

Has any one noticed an increase in pop up windows lately with IE6. I have been swamped with them. Yes I have service pack 2. Yes I have the firewall
active. Yes I have the pop up blocker turned on and set to High. What am I missing? I know someone is going to ask me some for some detail like
"Does
the build number have dashes or comma's in it." I have given you what I know. If you need to know if the CD packaged in the morning or afternoon in order to give me advise Thanks but dont even go there. If you know what I am overlooking please just tell me. Thanks