

RE: Hiding Popup Blocker Settings

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.setup/2004-10/0512.html>

From: security_freak (securityfreak_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 10/27/04

Date: Wed, 27 Oct 2004 08:31:09 -0700

Hello,

You can check this site to do it either through the registry or Group policy.

<http://www.winxptutor.com/sp2/popmgmt.htm>

Have you found a way to prevent users from making changes to the settings accessible through the Privacy Report icon?

Hope this helps

"nb" wrote:

- > We're packaging WinXPSP2 for deployment to users. One change I'd like to make
- > is to hide or disable changes to the Popup Blocker settings by removing the
- > option from the Tools menu in IE. It will be turned on in our package with
- > Medium security level and we'd like to see it stay that way.
- >
- > I can't find anything in Group Policy or the registry to do this...has
- > anyone discovered the setting?