

RE: Making impossible change proxy settings, even on dial-up conne

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.setup/2005-08/msg00178.h>

- From: "FB" <FB@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Tue, 30 Aug 2005 07:10:03 -0700
-

No. For a while i've configured the dial-up with the user account, copied to the Default User and used GPOs to stop changing...

"Haha" wrote:

> Well I m facing the same problem
> Did you find solution?
>
> --
> Best Regards
>
>
> "FB" wrote:
>
>> i'm trying to use the policy to make proxy settings to a machine-level >> config, even on dial-up connections
>>
>> i have a notebook that can connect to internet in hotel rooms or in the home >> environment, via ISPs in any city dialing a local telephone number. But i >> would like to "force" the user to use ALWAYS my internal proxy server.
>>
>> The problem: In a LAN, the notebooks connect to internet via a local proxy.
>> When they're out of the company they connect first via a local ISP and after >> connected to the local ISP, they use a VPN client to connecto to the >> corporate environment. The problem resides in the fact that before the vpn >> connection, he can navigate in the internet to any web site, without any >> control by my local proxy (internal) Before the VPN be opened, he have >> unrestricted access to the internet.
>>
>> When i use the option to "force" a proxy setting at the machine-level, it >> does not >> work for dial-up connections. The dial-up connections still have their own >> proxy settings, bypassing the local proxy (my desktops and notebooks, when >> connected in my LAN have a Proxy Setting configured via group Policy),
>>
>>
>>

- References:

- ◆ Making impossible change proxy settings, even on dial-up connectio

- ◇ From: FB

- ◆ RE: Making impossible change proxy settings, even on dial-up connectio

- ◇ From: Haha

- Prev by Date: Printing from IE6

- Next by Date: Re: Printing from IE6

- Previous by thread: RE: Making impossible change proxy settings, even on dial-up connectio

- Next by thread: where dial-up proxy settings are stored?

- Index(es):

- ◆ Date

- ◆ Thread