

Re: selective e-mails received

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6_outlookexpress/2004-02/1

From: N. Miller (nsm_at_blackhole.aosake.net)

Date: 02/09/04

Date: Mon, 9 Feb 2004 10:20:18 -0800

In article <28C14A69-F371-4E93-99D2-0657791A765C@microsoft.com>, anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com says...

- > A secondary OE identity was set up for me on my predecessor's computer, to ease transition.
- > My OE identity seems to have a quirk: It is not receiving e-mails originating from my home office and sent directly to me.
- > HOWEVER, it DOES receive e-mails for items sent to someone else, and CC'd to me . . .
- > And, it only seems to be happening with my home office . . . I am receiving original e-mails from other people.
- > I am very close to backing up all the e-mails and other data files, and reformatting the hard drive and setting up my identity as the only one on the computer (and, needless to say, I will also change to Outlook)
- > Any thoughts?

The ultimate solution seems a rather drastic step for some kind of configuration error; I'd have reformatted and reinstalled a dozen times, last month, using that strategy! ;)

Any addressing quirks in the home office email? Are they going to the same POP3 server as the other email? The thing about SMTP (which is the sending side of email) is that email will be delivered properly, as long as the address is correct, so any issues seem to be with how the MDA is routing the email; this POP3 (which is the receiving side of email) server, or that POP3 server. Your client can only get email from a particular POP3 server if that server is getting the email. I am not sure that I see how a routing issue will be solved by a reinstall.

Oh, and if you have the authority to reinstall, don't you have the authority to delete the other Identity? I am really rambling here, because I can't quite put a finger on the problem, given the lack of details; maybe my thrashing about will trigger some other ideas, though.

microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6_outlookexpress: Re: selective e-mails received

--

Norman

~Win dain a lotica, En vai tu ri, Si lo ta
~Fin dein a loluca, En dragu a sei lain
~Vi fa-ru les shutai am, En riga-lint