Hope this is the correct group, but if not please redirect me.

I recently was forced to do a full rebuild of my system.

Before doing so I backed-up all of me *.dbx files I wished to keep, hoping that after the rebuild I could restore these to their correct place, and so not loose any data.

I could not use the export messages function, as I had nowhere to export them to, or so I think.

Problem is now that even after restoring them, restoring them to another folder, and copying them to their correct place, they do not seem to work. As the restore goes through its process, the file, and folder names are given correctly, but on opening the explorer window, they are not shown.

I am stumped, is there any way of retrieving this data, or is it lost forever??

Any help offered, will be most gratefully appreciated, and for now thanks for reading, and possibly offering help.

Cheers Vaughn
