

Re: OE website ounds

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6_outlookexpress/2004-12/0

From: Kate (kzlists_at_yahoo.nospam)

Date: 12/03/04

Date: Fri, 3 Dec 2004 16:06:27 -0500

Oops. Sorry I miss posted. Brain fart!!
Kate

"Michael Santovec" <michael_santovec@prodigy.net> wrote in message news:e185AZL2EHA.2540@TK2MSFTNGP09.phx.gbl...

> If you are talking about web sites then you are talking about IE (Internet > Explorer) not OE (Outlook Express).

>

> In either case, the issue could be the security zone. By default OE > should be in the Restricted Zone which disables scripting, ActiveX and > Java which the web site might be using.

>

> Additionally, in IE look at Tools, Internet Options, Advanced, Multimedia.

>

> Use the following newsgroup for questions or problems with IE6

> <news://msnews.microsoft.com/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6.browser>

>

> You can also get to the Internet Explorer newsgroups via this web site:

> <http://www.microsoft.com/communities/newsgroups/default.aspx>

> There select Internet Explorer

>

>

>

> --

>

> Mike - http://pages.prodigy.net/michael_santovec/techhelp.htm