Prepare your document in MS Word if you have to, but then after saving it, click again on the File menu within Word and use File/Send To/Mail Recipient.

The instructions are not to send as an attachment. Oh the woes of having to follow the instructions to the T. Some of the assignments are to send as an attachment, others, like this one, are to be sent within the body of the message.

I was able to copy and paste each paragraph separately but I could not copy and paste the entire document.

This is not the first time it has happened and it is not every document. Some documents come across perfectly.

1. Send the document as an attachment.
2. Scan your computer for viruses.

I am currently enrolled in an on-line business course and we are required to use OE as the means of posting assignments. As with any college level class, formatting the documents is a "big deal".

I normally do my assignments in Word then cut and paste the document into OE. There are occasions when the line spacing does not come across properly.

I have not been able to figure out how to change the line spacing after the text is pasted into OE nor have I been able to determine what is causing the document to change the spacing from the original document.

The line spacing is required to be double-spaced with the cover page centered, the body of the essay top justified with first line indent, and then the reference page is top justified with a hanging first line.

Can anyone guide me into what may be happening so that I can post the message with the correct format? Any suggestions would be sincerely appreciated.
