After installing WinXP SP2, IE6, OE, whenever I email a link to a webpage via 'Mail, Send a Link' in IE6, I get this message in the body of the OE email:

"The message is ready to be sent with the following file or link attachments: Shortcut to: <link> Note: To protect against computer viruses, e-mail programs may prevent sending or receiving certain types of file attachments. Check your e-mail security settings to determine how attachments are handled."

Prior to installing WinXP, I used OE with IE6 and Win2000, and I didn't have any such message accompanying webpage links sent 'Mail.Send a Link, only the link appeared in the email.

Is there any way to eliminate this verbiage when I email webpage links via 'Mail, Send a Link'? Thanks for any help that may be offered.

This was answered in another newsgroup.

If you must post identical messages in more than one newsgroup please crosspost, i.e. please place all of the newsgroups in the Newsgroup field of one message, separated by commas. That way when someone reads the message in one newsgroup it will be marked as read in all of them. In addition, an answer posted in one newsgroup will generally show up in all of them.

This is usually not necessary since most of those who answer posts read more than one newsgroup.
