

something completely different

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6_outlookexpress/2005-10/m

- From: "Terry Haeber" <Terry.Haeber@xxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 9 Oct 2005 06:45:13 -0700
-

Hello

I realize that this is quite a ways off – topic but I've received so much help from this group that I thought I'd run it by you.

Recently I've received numerous emails purporting to be from Paypal, but are not. I keep reporting them to Paypal, but of course that does not stop them.

I decided to use my limited abilities to check into the most recent.

Properties>Details gave me a Return Path of:

administrator@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

and an IP address of:

203.200.234.178

I ran the address on IDServe and came up with :

Server is: Apache/1.3.33(Darwin)

I Googled this and came up with what appears to be a tie in with Apple Computers Inc. and a domain name of store.apple.com.

My questions are:

1. Is Apache an Internet Provider, and would Darwin refer to the city in Australia?
2. Would it be of any use for me to contact them with the above information?
3. If so, would anyone know how I can contact them?
4. Am I totally out to lunch on this?

Thanks

Terry

.

- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: something completely different
◇ From: Kuay Tim
 - ◆ Re: something completely different
◇ From: Charlie Tame

something completely different

- Prev by Date: Re: Everything just disappeared!!!!!!!!!!!!
- Next by Date: Re: News Shortcut
- Previous by thread: Printing Question for Outlook Express 6
- Next by thread: Re: something completely different
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread