

Outbox preview pane not updated after editing

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6_outlookexpress/2006-01/m

- From: "John Carson" <jcarson_n o sp am @xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Thu, 19 Jan 2006 01:58:13 +1100
-

When making newsgroup posts or sending emails, I have Outlook Express configured so that the item initially goes to the Outbox for review, before I finally send it to the intended recipient. After reading the Outbox item in the preview pane, I often decide to edit it. Accordingly, I double-click on the item in the Outbox, edit it, and then click Send. This puts it in the Outbox again.

In the past, the preview pane has changed to reflect the editing that I have done, but that is no longer the case. I still see the original version.

If I double-click on the item again to open it, then I see that the changes I have made are there, so the editing has "worked". It seems that the problem is that Outlook Express is caching the item in the Outbox and the preview is being taken from that cache and not being refreshed.

If I click on the Outbox pane away from the item, so it is deselected, and then click on it again, the preview pane is refreshed and I see the new edits. However, this step wasn't necessary until the last week or so.

I am using Windows XP Home with all the latest updates.

Has anyone else seen this and does anyone have any ideas about how to fix it?

—
John Carson

-
- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: Outbox preview pane not updated after editing
 - ◇ From: PA Bear

Outbox preview pane not updated after editing

- Prev by Date: Re: Shortcut for Message Source?
- Next by Date: many many many errors :(
- Previous by thread: Mail account,IE6
- Next by thread: Re: Outbox preview pane not updated after editing
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread