

Re: Address book problem

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.inetexplorer.ie6_outlookexpress/2006-08/m

- From: "Jim Pickering" <jimp@xxxxxxx>
 - Date: Mon, 24 Jul 2006 09:24:51 -0700
-

Thanks for the update and good luck with it. I suspect your tech may remove Office 2000 to make the computer "legal" again since you've not paid for a copy, but I don't know that for certain. Post back if you continue to have problems after the repair is complete.

--

Jim Pickering
MVP-Outlook Express/Windows Mail

"BAZ" <bonnie.zimmer@xxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:1153742161.014263.76960@xx>

Although my computer is 4 years old, it's pretty speedy (1.8 Ghz Pentium IV) with 256 MB of Ram and a 40 GB Hard Drive. I've also invested in a graphic card (since their on board card wasn't fast enough for me). I figured the computer had another good year in it! The owner of PC Warehouse also felt the same way. She could easily have pushed a new faster PC on me.

I found the article about the 3 AM automatic updates that I sent to you to be very interesting – and may indeed have caused the problem I experienced with Outlook Express. It sounds like too much of a coincidence to me!

Again – I don't know why the computer repairman at PC Warehouse installed Office 2000 when I don't have a disc. But he is good and will f