Hi Frank,

It's all unchecked by default.

I'm not sure I'm fully understood:

I use 2 identities (because it's a shared computer) for OE6. Whenever I switch identity I get the message:

"You are currently connected to the Internet. Do you want to keep the current connection for the next identity?"

with a Yes-No dialog.

This is the dialog which I want to vanish (make it takes "yes" as its answer)

It may was useful while we all used a dialup connection, but now on the DSL and Cable fast (and constant) connection it's only annoying.

Thanks

Tools | Account

For each account click Properties and go to the Connections tab. Uncheck the box to "Always use this connection".

Dear Jim,

This is not a dialog that can be dismissed, neither by a checkbox or this registry key.

I also tried to find a registry key that could be related to this dialog, and found under

Re: Geeing rid of "keep connection for next identity"

HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Identities\{GUID}\Software\Microsoft\Outlook Express\5.0
the value "SwitchConnectionPrompt" which seems to be related to my issue, but even when changing its value from 1 to 0 didn't do the job.

Thanks

If you have "dismissed" a dialog in Outlook Express, the only way to change it is to make a registry edit under this key:

For OE dialogs that you have disabled, open Regedit and navigate to this key:

HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Identities\{GUID}\Software\Microsoft\Outlook Express\5.0\Dont Show Dialogs where {GUID} is the globally unique identifier for your OE Identity.

In the right-hand pane you will see all the dialogues that you have turned off by clicking "don't show this again". Change the value to 0 (zero) to re-enable a particular dialog.

Hi,

I only press "no" on this dialog by mistake – is there any way to stop being asked for that question?

Thanks

Re: Geeing rid of "keep connection for next identity"

I don't use Identities, so I guess I really don't know, but if that box is not checked for any account in any identity then it may not be possible to get rid of the dialog. It would be annoying.
