

Re: changing space bar direction

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.mediacenter/2006-03/msg01548.html>

---

- From: "JW" <nospam@xxxxxxx>
  - Date: Sat, 18 Mar 2006 16:27:04 -0800
-

Since I am retired and have been working with computers for over 40 years I think I am old enough to have had one of these apparently now obsolete keyboards that you have. I suggest that you get a new keyboard and stop trying to insult those of us who are trying to help you or go somewhere else with your problem.

"maxlong" <maxlong@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message <news:C86DA981-26A7-4CC8-B5D4-DEF4601B57F5@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

look; I have a compaq keyboard, there are TWO spacing bars on the bottom of the key board, one of them has an arrow on it pointing to the left, it is supposed to backspace your typing cursor to the LEFT, the other bar is plain, it does not have an arrow on it:(THEY ARE NOT THE ARROW KEYS) It should move your cursor to the right when you are typing so you can put a space between the words you are typing, Follow me so far???this is a compaq keyboard I have used it for many years, there is a couple of keystrokes to use to reverse the function of the two spacing bars. My grandson was playing on here and changed them, I take it none of you are old enough to have had one of these keyboards, so maybe I am wasting my time here?

"JW" wrote:

Maybe the OP is referring to the left an right arrow keys, however, I have never heard about them going in the wrong direction.

"Nigel Barker" <nigel@xxxxxx> wrote in message <news:edso12hkld6jcnvcbldgf9asathoben2c@xxxxxxxxxxxx>

On Sat, 18 Mar 2006 15:16:09 -0500, "Jaime" <nospamfor-jaimelobo@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

Re: changing space bar direction

I'm lost too!

Me too. I only have one space bar & that goes up & down not left or right:-)

--

Nigel Barker
Live from the sunny Cote d'Azur