

Re: Child domain

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.active_directory/2004-09/0274.html

From: Emyeu (cmchong20_at_yahoo.com)

Date: 09/03/04

Date: Fri, 3 Sep 2004 09:35:30 +0800

> Trusted domains like the domains within one forest do not automatically > grant rights on resources for users of other domains.
>
> If you want to access a share in another domain, make first sure that > name resolution works (that you are able to ping the server by it's > dns-name), then look at the share permissions and check that the user > or group has sufficient rights there, then do the same thing on the > NTFS-Rights.
>

No problem ping the dns-name.

Which share permissions are you referring? Are you referring to the shared folder rights or the domain rights??

"Ulf B. Simon-Weidner [MVP]" <nospam2-ulf@usw-consulting.com> wrote in message news:uihMUOTkEHA.1644@tk2msftngp13.phx.gbl...

> "Emyeu" <cmchong20@yahoo.com> wrote in message
> news:OSs#8xOkEHA.3944@tk2msftngp13.phx.gbl:
>> I have a workstation A joined to a child domain A, and another workstation
>> B
>> joined to another child domain B.
>>
>> From wk A I can't access to wk B. It prompts an error:
>>
>> "servername is not accessible. You might not have permission to use this >> network resource....."
>>
> Hello Emyeu,
>
> --
> Gruesse - Sincerely,
>
> Ulf B. Simon-Weidner