

Re: List of Duplicate Users in a Forest

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.active\_directory/2004-09/1334.html

---

From: Al Mulnick (amulnick_No_SPAM_at_ncDOTrr.com)

Date: 09/18/04

Date: Fri, 17 Sep 2004 20:24:02 -0400

A database and some scripting would be useful. A database to munge the data and report it and scripting to pull it in the first place and populate the tables.

"Kanga" <kangwnl@yahoo.co.uk> wrote in message news:b47b1b70.0409171038.36373f56@posting.google.com...

> Hello

>

> We are combining about fifteen independant NT domains into one Active

> Directory forest with about eight domains. We need to end up so that > each person only has one user ID in the forest. At the moment, many > users have an ID in multiple domains. Their user ID may be the same > name across domains or may be different (in that case will require > some data massaging of First and Last Name). We are not doing this > cleanup process until the users have migrated into AD.

>

> I wondered what tools / processes people would recommend to achieve > this task?

>

> Kanga