

Re: How to search in Active directory with no basedn

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.active_directory/2005-02/1534.html

From: Al Mulnick (amulnick_No_SPAM_at_ncDOTrr.com)

Date: 02/22/05

Date: Mon, 21 Feb 2005 22:25:48 -0500

If you need more data than the GC provides as suggested below you may need to fix that.

What platform are you using LDAPSearch from and is this in code or command line?

Al

"Michael L. D'Angelo" <nmdange-nospam@phoenixworx.org> wrote in message news:OrqFutIGFHA.1264@TK2MSFTNGP12.phx.gbl...
> "Raj" <Raj@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message > news:A7CFD11D-A43F-4E43-BBF7-2E8459526514@microsoft.com...
>> Hi,
>> I need to search active directory , but that point of time i donot know
>> the >> basedn. When I try to search >> ldapsearch -h hostname -p portnabr -b "" "objectclass=*"
>> i get following error :
>> # search result >> # search: 2
>> # result: 32 No such object >> # text0000208D: NameErr: DSID-031001A1, problem 2001 (NO_OBJECT), data >> t match of:
>>
>> To me looks like there might be some setting where i can say allow empty >> searchbasedn. I know i can do same search in OID with no search basedn
>> I will apprecaiate if any one can reply for this.
>>
>> Thanks
>> Raj
>
> If you connect to the Global Catalog port (3268) you can search AD without > a base DN.
>