

Re: Group Policy???

> 2) Restrict some network sources.

Not sure what you mean here, either....

>

> Can anybody help me on this, also suggest any other activities > restrict through Group Policy as well as Local Machine Group Policy.

Be careful in your terminology. You don't want or need to use local machine policies when you have a domain. You want to control them within AD, centrally. Right?

>

> Please guide me step by step..I so can easily implement in our domain > environment.

>

> Regards

> Udi

You might want to post in a GP group for more specific help.... but it would be good to provide more details what exactly you want to prevent.

.

• References:

◆ Group Policy???

◇ From: udi via WinServerKB.com

• Prev by Date: Re: Trust between NT 4 domain and Active directory Windows 2003

• Next by Date: Re: Folder redirecterion after scripting

• Previous by thread: Group Policy???

• Next by thread: Laptop & Cached Credentials

• Index(es):

◆ Date

◆ Thread