

Re: Group Policy for WinXP local administrator rights

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.active_directory/2005-07/msg01230

- From: "Oli Restorick [MVP]" <oli@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 17 Jul 2005 01:32:48 +0100
-

Just to expand on that, you can also use "interactive" in place of %username%. This will mean that anybody who already has the right to do an interactive logon will get admin when logged in to the machine. If you just give "domain users" admin rights to all workstations, bear in mind that they will also gain admin rights over the network to other machines. They could then run processes on remote machines (for example, to log keystrokes, take screen captures, or take over the identity of a user logged in to another machine).

Oli

"Haim Lazarovitch" <HaimLazarovitch@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:5E255433-7442-4814-A27E-9EEB112C8186@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx > hmm...just create a logon startup script in computer_policy !! (very > important to do that under compuer policy we want it to add by system > account
> with privilege)section with that command (you can do the with bat file):
>
> net localgroup administrators %username% /add
>
> "John Lenz" wrote:
>
>> I want to setup the group policy fro a WinXP domain users to have local >> administrator rights on their PC as well as control panel change access.
>> Where can I obtain a listing of settings to accomplish this?
>>
>> Thanks
>>
>>
>>

Re: Group Policy for WinXP local administrator rights

- Follow-Ups:

- ◆ Re: Group Policy for WinXP local administrator rights
◇ From: Paul Williams [MVP]

- References:

- ◆ Group Policy for WinXP local administrator rights
◇ From: John Lenz
- ◆ RE: Group Policy for WinXP local administrator rights
◇ From: Haim Lazarovitch

- Prev by Date: Re: W2K to W2K3 domain\user profile migration – with source server
- Next by Date: Re: Delete a Policy
- Previous by thread: RE: Group Policy for WinXP local administrator rights
- Next by thread: Re: Group Policy for WinXP local administrator rights
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread