

Re: Change Display Format in AD Users and Computers

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.active_directory/2005-07/msg02016

- From: Will Owen <WillOwen@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Tue, 26 Jul 2005 06:56:04 -0700
-

Cheers Paul,

Always look for the complex answers and miss the simple ones! That has worked a treat.

Will

"Paul Williams [MVP]" wrote:

- > Click View\ Add/ Remove columns...
 - > Then select the columns that you want.
 - >
 - > If some of the ones that you want are missing, you might be able to get them
 - > through the displaySpecifiers; otherwise it gets real messy -you'll have to
 - > modify the snap-in via C++.
 - >
 - > ---
 - > Paul Williams
 - > Microsoft MVP - Windows Server - Directory Services
 - > <http://www.msresource.net> | <http://forums.msresource.net>
 - >
 - >
 - >
 - .
-

• References:

- ◆ Change Display Format in AD Users and Computers
 - ◇ From: Will Owen
 - ◆ Re: Change Display Format in AD Users and Computers
 - ◇ From: Paul Williams [MVP]
- Prev by Date: Re: Giving new user Exact same environment as user they replaced
 - Next by Date: Re: Set default printer based on room location
 - Previous by thread: Re: Change Display Format in AD Users and Computers

Re: Change Display Format in AD Users and Computers

- Next by thread: disable wireless access on domain computers using GPO
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread