

Re: Site Link (SMTP)

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.active_directory/2005-08/msg00563

- From: "Xavier" <xminet@xxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 7 Aug 2005 08:26:37 +0200
-

When I used SMTP replication, I first installed Certificate Services on one of my domain controllers. I chose root CA, stored in Active Directory. Because the certificate is stored in AD, domain controllers in the forest can retrieve and use it. No other configuration was necessary.

Xavier

"Nir B" <nir@xxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:Omi5ZNxmFHA.1204@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

> Hi All,

>

>

>

> I have AD Windows 2000

>

> I configured SMTP-based replication between two of my sites.

>

> The best practices say "If you choose to use SMTP over site links, you > must install an enterprise CA. The CA signs SMTP messages that are > exchanged between domain controllers, ensuring the authenticity of > directory updates."

>

>

>

> I have enterprise CA installed.

>

>

>

> When configuring the site link I didn't find any tab that define the CA.

>

> How do I configure the site link to use the enterprise CA?

>

> Did it find automatically?

>

>

>

> Thanks In Advanced :-)

>
>
>
> Nir
>
>

.

• References:

- ◆ Site Link (SMTP)
◇ From: Nir B

- Prev by Date: Site Link (SMTP)
- Next by Date: FTP user isolation, Isolate users using Active Directory
- Previous by thread: Site Link (SMTP)
- Next by thread: FTP user isolation, Isolate users using Active Directory
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread