

do i need an Enterprise version to auto-enroll user certificate

---

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.active\_directory/2006-04/msg01350

---

- From: "MLi" <lige888@xxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Wed, 26 Apr 2006 10:15:10 -0400
-

I have root CA and sub CA. USers request certificate from sub CA.

My question is, to enable user certificate auto-enrollment, if my Root CA is enterprise version, does the sub CA need to be an enterprise version windows?

another dumb question: What if Root CA is std version but sub CA is enterprise version, will auto-enrollment work?