Hi all,

I am running SBS 2003 standard with exchange server. This is a pdc with active directory and has work fine for sometime.

Now my problem is only present for one user account. When the user prints to our network printer which users network id to queue jobs for users in the mailbox fashion all jobs sent by that user show up in another users queue. Also NDR's from our mail server (exchange) destint for the user in question are sent to the same user as the print queue issue. It seems like the network is confusing the two user accounts. Any thoughts on this weird issue.

Regards
