It should work quite well.
That is what I've been doing for the past while, only I have a maintenance
routine that runs before hand.

Out of curiosity, what does your maintenance routine do? I'm always looking for tips and ideas from the real world..

I have a utility I made that runs AV, a spyware cleaner, defrag, and disc cleanup. And if there is any problems with the program such as a fault or the AV definitions out of date it emails me to let me know what computer is having the problem.
