Thank's for your answer...

I try to concretize what i mean...

I have my own forest itd.domain.com.
Somewhere in time exists another forest domain.com. They are independent with no link between. Now, appear a link between this two forests.
How i can avoid merging of its.domain.com and domain.com into one single forest but with trusts? I didn't what merge two forests but only truests.

If you have two forests you can establish a trust and setup a one way or two way trust. Once the trust is established you only have to provide the level of trust you feel is necessary.

Re: Trusted domains

You really have been vague on what you are trying to accomplish, so there is some info below.

Source must be nt4, 2000 or 2003

Target must be 2000 or 2003

First setup the dns so the two domains know of each others name space.

Then establish a trust between the two forests

Hello!

Can i make a trusted
domains

Re: Trusted domains

without merging tree when the 1st
domain
is main.domain.com
and the 2nd domain is
test.main.domain.com?
I.e. can
exists
main.domain.com
and
test.main.domain.com
like a different domains but with trusts
between?

P.S. I'm not trust admins
from the main domain and didn't want
give them whole
rights on my test.main.domain.com.

Thanks!
