

Re: Server reboots in the night

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.general/2004-05/1996.html>

From: Robin Linton (anonymous_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 05/22/04

Date: Sat, 22 May 2004 12:32:31 -0700

There is no cleaning staff. Yes we do have a UPS box. The only other scheduled task is our anti virus software gets updated nightly, but it's not suppose to require a reboot.

>-----Original Message-----

>First, check to make sure your cleaning staff isn't doing something stupid >like plugging their vacuum cleaners into your UPS or anything like that. Do >you have a UPS with a management cable to handle power failure/power >conditioning? Any other scheduled tasks run at night?

>

>Robin Linton wrote:

>> We recently setup a Windows 2003 server in our office.

>> Every morning when we come in, the server has rebooted and >> we have to logon again. I'm not sure when the server is >> rebooting. I checked the event log and the only thing I >> can find that even remotly resembles my problem, is the >> tape backup software logging off and on as administrator.

>> I disabled the tape backup totest this theory and the >> server still rebooted. I have the latest and greatest >> Norton Anti Virus software and no virus has been >> detected. Does anybody have any suggestions for me to >> try? Thanks.

>

>

>

>