

Re: Default SMTP Server / IIS

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.general/2005-02/2078.html>

From: George Zolla (gazolla_at_san.rr.com)

Date: 02/22/05

Date: Tue, 22 Feb 2005 12:01:32 -0800

Windows 2003 doesn't support CDONTS. It uses CDO instead. The object is created like CDONTS but the properties are slightly different. You will need to look them up in MSDN

"Glenn" <nospam@yahoo.com> wrote in message
news:udD%23dn1FFHA.1132@TK2MSFTNGP10.phx.gbl...

> I have Server 2000.

>

> I have been reading that in IIS I should see a Default SMTP server. I do > not.

>

> I'm thinking it might also be because I have Exchange Server 2000 installed.

> Does anyone know if that is the case?

>

> Also, if it is – could that be why I can't get CDONTS to send mail? Could > it be looking for the Default SMTP server? I have one set up in exchange.

>

> Thanks.

>

>