

Re: Launch an EXE from a Login Script

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.general/2005-04/msg02077.html>

- From: "ACE-Joe" <ACEJoe@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 23 Apr 2005 05:49:02 -0700
-

Will that cause any trouble for older clients, like windows 2000? Most of my computers are XP but a few are 2000. Does the start command work for both without a problem?

Thanks
Joe

"Pegasus (MVP)" wrote:

>
> "ACE-Joe" <ACEJoe@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
> news:DDA2674C-030D-49E0-A954-470A2460A9CC@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx >> Hi all,
>>
>> I used to know this and completely forgot. I need to run a .exe file >> from a login script. However, I need to know the variable or switch to > make >> the login script run the program and then continue to process the login >> script. I don't want the login script to stop and wait for the process to >> finish before moving on. I want the login script to launch the .exe and > then >> continue on and exit. If anyone can remember this I would appreciate a > quick >> refresher!
>>
>> Thanks
>> Joe
>
> Precede the name of the .exe file with "start". To see the various > options for the start command, type start /? at the Command > Prompt.
>
>
>
>

Re: Launch an EXE from a Login Script

- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: Launch an EXE from a Login Script
 - ◇ From: Pegasus \(\MVP\)

- References:
 - ◆ Launch an EXE from a Login Script
 - ◇ From: ACE-Joe
 - ◆ Re: Launch an EXE from a Login Script
 - ◇ From: Pegasus \(\MVP\)

- Prev by Date: Managing XP Clients
- Next by Date: RE: SP! and the Dell Poweredge problem.
- Previous by thread: Re: Launch an EXE from a Login Script
- Next by thread: Re: Launch an EXE from a Login Script
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread