

Re: No Netlogon Service

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.general/2005-10/msg00461.html>

---

- From: "Miha Pihler [MVP]" <mihap-news@xxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Mon, 17 Oct 2005 21:46:19 +0200
-

Hi Paul,

Did you make all new server Global Catalogs?

Did you move FSMO roles?

How did you decommission Windows 2000 domain controller? Did you run dcpromo on it?

Can you check Event logs (specially System and Application) for any errors on your remaining domain controllers?

—

Mike

Microsoft MVP – Windows Security

"Paul Smith" <PaulSmith@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:4802805E-137C-444C-AC35-EE7E998B059A@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

- > We have installed two Windows 2003 servers into an environment that
- > previously had a single Windows 2000 server. All three servers were set
- > up
- > as DC's. Everything replicates nicely in AD and in the SYSVOL shares.
- >
- > Since the installation, I have demoted and decommissioned the Windows 2000
- > server.
- >
- > Since the decommissioning, I've noticed that the NETLOGON service was
- > never
- > added to one of the servers (for the sake of argument call it 2003 Server
- > 1).
- > If 2003 Server 2 goes down, for whatever reason, no one can login to 2003
- > Server 1. The NETLOGON service also doesn't show up in the Services
- > section
- > on the server. I've looked, and lsass.exe is running in the task manager
- > on
- > that server.
- >
- > Any ideas of what can be done?

- Follow-Ups:
  - ◆ Re: No Netlogon Service
    - ◇ From: Paul Smith

- Prev by Date: Re: whats a PRD server?
- Next by Date: Re: No Netlogon Service
- Previous by thread: SBS 2003 rebooting on it's own
- Next by thread: Re: No Netlogon Service
- Index(es):
  - ◆ Date
  - ◆ Thread