Hello,

Thank you for your post!

From your description I wonder if you want to install a dual boot system.

Normally, it is recommended that you perform a clean installation of Windows Server 2003.

If you need to perform a parallel installation of Windows Server 2003, I suggest you perform the installation according to the following article:

266465 How to perform a parallel installation of Windows 2000 or Windows Server 2003

<http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=kb:EN-US:266465>

Hope the information helps.

Best Regards,

Jason Tan

| Hi there ppl, need some advice/help here.

| I am trying to install windows server 2003 on my laptop which was pre-loaded
| with windows XP home. Ive run the windows installer to create a fresh install
| of server 2003, but after the laptop reboots to copy files over to the HDD in
| DOS, everything goes fine until it completes the file copying process and the | "press enter to proceed" screen appears (you know, when you agree to terms
| and conditions, etc) then just all of a sudden the laptop shuts down....
and
| i have to begin the process all over again.

| The laptop in question is an Acer Aspire 1642wlmi and the spec is:

| Pentium M 740 1.73 ghz
| 512mb Ram

| Any help would be much appreciated.
