

Re: routing problem

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.networking/2005-05/msg00274.html>

---

- From: <jjd228@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Thu, 12 May 2005 13:03:55 -0400
-

more clearly?? howzabout just clearly!

"Phillip Windell" <@.> wrote in message
<news:ugj70NmVFHA.2196@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

> Can you explain this more clearly?

>

>

> --

>

> Phillip Windell [MCP, MVP, CCNA]

> www.wandtv.com

>

>

> "Mike Ryan" <miker@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message

> <news:eZ74PHkVFHA.2664@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

>> I have a windows 98 computer

>>

>> We use a hawking router with a ipaddress of 192.168.1.1 on the local side

>> I have tried to dhcp and static the ip address on this machine.

>> I have set the address to the gateway and removed it withthe dhcp >> all the other machines are working just fine. with no problems going out.

>>

>>

>> I have taken it to a different location using a windows 2003 server to > route

>> the ip.

>> tried all the above and still nothing

>>

>> I get an ipaddress and dns and gateways from dns but nothing beyond.

>>

>> I can ping any machine on the network but I cannot ping the other side of >> either router. I can even pull down the web page of my local server

>>

>> What do you think could be stoping it at the local side and not getting >> outside the local network.

>>

>>

Re: routing problem

>>
>
>

.

---

• References:

◆ routing problem

◇ From: Mike Ryan

- Prev by Date: DHCP Clients getting lost....
- Next by Date: Internet printing
- Previous by thread: Re: routing problem
- Next by thread: ssh.exe hangs in windows if session doesn't connect properly
- Index(es):
  - ◆ Date
  - ◆ Thread