

Re: Windows XP Pro Issues

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.networking/2005-07/msg00258.html>

- From: Zimmie <Zimmie@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Thu, 14 Jul 2005 08:54:05 -0700
-

I'm not familiar with DNS Configuration. Is there something specific i should be looking for?

the workstations are logging on to the domain instead of the local computer.

"Doug Sherman [MVP]" wrote:

- > Try:
- >
- > 1. Double check DNS configuration on server and clients, and check Event Viewer for errors.
- >
- > 2. After joining a domain the default reboot option is to log onto the local machine – make sure you are logging onto the domain.
- >
- > 3. The XP fast logon feature can prevent a user from being properly authenticated – try turning it off. See:
- >
- > <http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=kb;en-us:305293>
- >
- > Doug Sherman
- > MCSE, MCSA, MCP+I, MVP
- >
- > "Zimmie" <Zimmie@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
- > news:88F1FB46-003C-4A68-BCBD-1B6D3A54A72D@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx
- >> Hi, I have three win xp pro workstations that i'm ready to throw out the
- >> window. I was able to join them to the domain, but i am not able to
- > access
- >> any network files on the server. It keeps asking me to log in(i even try
- > log
- >> in as administrator) and tells me i don't have access to the server.
- >>
- >> It seems to happen to all the win xp pro workstations. (they all have sp2)
- >> but our windows 98 machines are not affected.
- >>
- >> Any idea's? Please Help!
- >
- >

>
.

-
- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: Windows XP Pro Issues
 - ◇ From: Doug Sherman [MVP]

 - References:
 - ◆ Windows XP Pro Issues
 - ◇ From: Zimmie
 - ◆ Re: Windows XP Pro Issues
 - ◇ From: Doug Sherman [MVP]

 - Prev by Date: Re: 802.1X and Guest
 - Next by Date: Re: Need some advice
 - Previous by thread: Re: Windows XP Pro Issues
 - Next by thread: Re: Windows XP Pro Issues
 - Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread