

Re: Problem getting w2kPro to become part of domain

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.networking/2005-08/msg00536.html>

---

- From: "Bob" <bdufour@xxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Thu, 18 Aug 2005 13:29:40 -0400
-

Thanks, that did it.

Bob

"Michael Giorgio – MS MVP" <Michael.Giorgio@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:%23KivdpApFHA.1412@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

- > Looks like you already have a connection to the domain
- > before you join. Open a dos prompt and run:
- > net use * /delete
- > This will remove all of your existing mapped drives.
- >
- > "Bob" <bdufour@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:
- >> Got a W2k Srvr, latest sp and critical updates applied. It is set up as
- >> a domain controller (the first one on my soho network). I got a W2kPro
- >> machine that is member of Workgroup and a WinXp machine that is member of
- >> mydomain. I log on to all machines using the same username and password,
- >> using a domain account. But on the W2kPro I have same user name as a
- >> local account for now. I want to have the Win2K machine as part of the
- >> domain. When I get to stage where my user name and password of a user
- >> able to join doin domain is required I enter administrator and his domain
- >> password. I get "The credentials supplied conflict with an existing set
- >> of credentials" and cant go any further except click cancel. Can anyone
- >> tell me what I got to do to join that darn domain.
- >
- >

-
- Follow-Ups:
    - ◆ Re: Problem getting w2kPro to become part of domain
◇ From: Michael Giorgio – MS MVP
  - References:
    - ◆ Problem getting w2kPro to become part of domain

Re: Problem getting w2kPro to become part of domain

◇ From: Bob

◆ Re: Problem getting w2kPro to become part of domain

◇ From: Michael Giorgio – MS MVP

- Prev by Date: Re: Give access based on location
- Next by Date: Re: Multiple NICs
- Previous by thread: Re: Problem getting w2kPro to become part of domain
- Next by thread: Re: Problem getting w2kPro to become part of domain
- Index(es):
  - ◆ Date
  - ◆ Thread