

Re: Workstation account issues in Active Directory

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.networking/2005-11/msg00200.html>

- From: "Olaf Engelke [MVP Windows Server]" <oenews01@xxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Fri, 11 Nov 2005 12:16:21 +0100
-

Hi again,

could it be, that the DHCP lease for those clients is running off, the contact to the DHCP server is not fast enough or the users are trying log in to early (the shell is up, but the network not)?

Would it work better

a) with a fixed IP address

b) if the users power on the PC, go _slowly_ pick up their morning coffee, and then login?

Best greetings from Germany

Olaf

.