This is an authentication problem. The user account on the client does not have the required permissions on the server. I'd first check your group policy settings for the "access this computer from the network" setting on the server to ensure this is not the problem.

Hi,

Why I can't take use share with W2003 server from client?
When mapped server share. I get error the mapped network drive could not be created because the folowing error has occured: Logon failure: the user has not been granted the requested logon type at this computer.

And I can't use those server printer too.
