Hello A,

Remove it from the domain and rejoin it. Then try again.

Best regards

Hi,

I have a Windows 2003 server with 30+ domain users. I have shared a number of folders on the server for these users to access and store files, however, there is a laptop which does not logon to the domain, but exists on the network.

Normally, I would expect a username/password prompt to show if this laptop were to access the Win2003 server's shared folders. This did occur a few times, but has now stopped and keeps prompting the same message of having no permissions to access the resource. How do I continue to have this username/password dialog appear?

Thank you in advance,

A.
