

Re: Rogue Folder

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs/2004-03/1204.html>

From: Mike R (rfilter_at_pacbell.net)

Date: 03/04/04

Date: Wed, 3 Mar 2004 19:14:57 -0800

Yep, if you right click the folder and select security, you will (should) get an alert saying that you (paraphrased) "don't have permission to change security settings but that you can take ownership of the directory". From there click on advanced, then owner and set yourself as the owner. You may have to go back and also give yourself permission (full priveledge) as well.

"Dave Nickason [SBS MVP]" <gwdibble@NOSPAM.frontiernet.net> wrote in message news:emkLaTXAEHA.212@TK2MSFTNGP12.phx.gbl...

> What's the folder name? I've had a situation where directories are created > during patch installations (I'm pretty sure WU), then not deleted or > deletable (if that's a word). I can't remember how I've gotten rid of > these – I think what I did was to log in as admin and take ownership of > the > directory, then delete it. An example of one of these directory names > (this > is a real example): 45a7a817b4d2224ce22470c7edef
>
> FWIW, I haven't noticed any of these being created since I began using > SUS.
>
> "Daren" <daren_friday@removethis.hotmail.com> wrote in message
> news:%230QBuHXAEHA.3712@tk2msftngp13.phx.gbl...
>> Hey All
>>
>> I have a folder that I am unable to delete even logged in as >> administrator.
>> Don't know how I have done this but it's becoming a pain in the butt!
>> It is completely empty but completely locked.
>>
>> This is the best newsgroup I have ever come accross, keep it up.
>>
>> How to delete please?
>>
>> Cheers
>>
>> Daren

microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs: Re: Rogue Folder

>>
>>
>
>